

MEAGAN ALLEN

ARTIST // SONGWRITER // MUSICIAN

Born and raised in Houston, Texas, Meagan Allen's love of music began in the shape of a violin at age four. Watered and fed by a diverse range of sounds (from George Strait to Billie Holiday), this love soon found its manifestation in music composition. In her fourteenth year, she began to perform at local venues in her hometown.

In 2017, under the guidance of Christian rock sensation and mentor Sarah Kelly, Meagan recorded and released her debut album, entitled Critical Emotion, which culminated in a headlining show at Houston venue Dosey Doe. "That was my first taste of the industry," Meagan recalls, "I think that was the first time the magic of performing felt more like a reality than just a dream." This album, as well as her 2019 single, "Show Me How You Love", appeared on the Grammy long list in the years they were released.

After graduating high school, Meagan moved to Nashville to pursue a career in artistry, earning a degree in songwriting at Belmont University in May 2021 and an MBA with a concentration in Music Business in 2022.

Recently, she received accolades as one of the seven winners of Tennessee Songwriter Week's songwriting competition with her heartfelt song "Love Lies", cowritten with Josie Bisto and Corben Champoux. This competition culminated in a showcase at the iconic Bluebird Cafe.

Today, Meagan continues to write and perform fervently across the United States, living the dream that underlies her journey thus far and leaning into a sound uniquely her own.
